LAW YOU SHOULD KNOW
A power of attorney (POA) is a legal way to have one person act on behalf of another. The Power of Attorney document gives someone authority to act on your behalf on matters that you list in the document. The power can be specific to a certain task or can cover many duties including financial and medical. The power can start immediately or only after some event occurs such as the principal becoming mentally incompetent. A power of attorney does not take away your right to act on your behalf.

ALL STATES ARE REQUIRED TO RECOGNIZE MILITARY POWERS OF ATTORNEY Federal law demands that a Military Power of Attorney instrument be given legal effect without regard to specific state law. Also, they are “from any requirement of form, substance, formality, or recording” that may be normally required by different states. See (10 U.S.C. §§ 1044(b)(a)(1-2)).

DIFFERENT TYPES OF POWER OF ATTORNEYS
There are different types of powers of attorney. Each type has a different purpose and grants different levels of power to the agent.

- Power of Attorney for Minor: A POA for minor document can be used for a caregiver of a minor child that is not the custodial parent or legal guardian. This document may be particularly helpful when establishing residency for the child's school enrollment or to provide medical consent. This document does not take custody away from the parent and can be revoked at any time.

- General Power of Attorney: This type of POA allows the agent to carry on business or other matters for the principal. This type of POA usually has very broad powers.

When Does a Power of Attorney End?
A power of attorney can end either by setting a specific date for it to end, if the agent or principal dies, or if the principal revokes it in writing.

You can revoke a power of attorney by giving written notice to the agent. If a power of attorney is durable and you become incompetent, only the court can revoke it during the time you are incompetent. This could happen if an interested party petitions the court on your behalf, alleging that the attorney-in-fact has violated his or her responsibilities.
